

1. Display the lowest salary for employees having department_id=50.
2. Display the first_name, the last_name and the department_id for employees having the lowest salary.
3. Display the last in the alphabetic list of names.
4. Display the first_name, the last_name and the department_id for the first employee in the alphabetic list of names
5. Display the first_name, the last_name and the department_id for employees who earn less than the average salary.
6. Display the maximum salary of employees in each department.
7. Display the average salary of employees in each department and order by department_id. Round the average with two decimal places.
8. Arrange in descending order according to job_id, and display the employees' minimum salary for each job_id.
9. Arrange in descending order according to department_id, and display the employees' maximum salary for each department_id>60.
10. Display the average salary of employees for each job_id $\neq$ sa_rep and order by job_id.
11. Show how many employees are in each department.
12. Show how many employees work for each job_id.
13. Find the average salary in each department and then only return the department with the lowest salary greater than four thousand.
14. Display the biggest salary for each department!=50. Group the data using department_id.
15. Display the lowest salary for each department having a min(salary)>5000. Group the data using department_id.
16. Display the biggest salary for each department having a maximum wage of less than 9000. Group the data using department_id.
17. Display the first in the alphabetic list of names name for each department. Group the data using department_id (use the last_name).
18. Display the last in the alphabetic list of names name for each department. Group the data using department_id (use the last_name).
19. Display for each department the date when the first person was hired. Group the data using department_id.
20. Display for each department the date when the last person was hired. Group the data using department_id.